BANKRUPTCY LAW

JOINT LIABILITY AFTER CAUSE OF DISSOLUTION

If the company enters into legal cause for dissolution and the administrators do not act within two months, they are personally liable with their own assets for the debts generated after that moment, including unpaid wages.

CONDITIONS TO CLAIM LIABILITY

The worker must prove that the wage debt arose after the cause of dissolution, that it was not properly managed, and that the unpaid amount is enforceable and due.

FIVE-YEAR STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

The action to claim against the administrator prescribes after five years from when the debt became enforceable, giving workers a broad margin to exercise their rights.

SEVERE LEGAL CONSEQUENCES

Besides patrimonial liability, administrators may face criminal penalties if fraud, deceit, or serious violation of labor rights is proven.
