REINTEGRATION AS A CONSTITUTIONAL MANDATE

THE FAILURE OF FORGETFULNESS AND THE TRIUMPH OF THE LAW

💬 There is a social tendency to make those who cross the gates of a penitentiary center invisible. Society often considers that justice ends the day the sentence is handed down. However, our Spanish Constitution, in its Article 25.2, establishes a clear and humane mandate: sentences depriving individuals of liberty shall be oriented towards reeducation and social reintegration.

💬In the Criminal and Penitentiary Law department of MCHM Abogados, we embrace this constitutional mandate as our guiding principle. We know that a prison is a hostile environment where bureaucracy can become suffocating, and where the inmate may feel that their file is just another number.

The work of a penitentiary lawyer is, in essence, a job of legal rescue. It consists of constantly reminding the Administration that the ultimate goal is not perpetual punishment, but preparing the person for their return to society. Every appeal won for a furlough, every progression to the third degree achieved, is not just a technical triumph; it is a step towards the restoration of a life and the reunification of a family. We urge you not to lose hope and to trust that, even in the most restrictive circumstances, the protection of the law must always prevail.
