Parents` Income

The child support calculation is based on the net income of both parents, including salaries, social benefits, and other regular income.

Child`s Needs

The specific needs of the child, such as food, education, clothing, housing, and medical care, must be assessed to ensure that the support adequately covers these aspects.

Economic Capacity

Each parent`s financial capacity is analyzed to establish a fair contribution, also considering additional financial burdens such as mortgages or loans.

Custody and Visitation Arrangements

The type of custody (shared or sole) and visitation arrangements influence the calculation of child support. In shared custody cases, the support amount may be lower or even unnecessary if both parents equally contribute to the child`s expenses.
